

It has been noted that Vacation Bible School has been a strong and viable part of faith formation for many children and youth. It also is a way for children to have even more interaction with other significant adults as they travel the faith formation journey. With COVID-19, it made it very difficult for Vacation Bible Schools to happen last year, and with the trends continuing, we are faced again with what to do?

Several publishers have made new avenues to offer virtual pieces that allow Vacation Bible School to take place virtually – either in families or in small neighborhood groups. This communication will explore the themes and major Bible stories of several of these publishers and indicate which one has plans to offer some virtual options around the theme Beth Hayes will be available and glad to answer questions about any of this and to secure resources from Abingdon/Cokesbury, Shine, Gen On, and PCUSA.
